Keller's American Hymn.

1. Speed our republic, O Father on high!
Lead us in pathways of justice and right;
Rulers as well as the ruled, "One and all,"
Girdle with virtue the armor of might.
Hail! three times hail to our country and flag!

CHORUS:
Rulers as well as the ruled, "One and all,"
Girdle with virtue the armor of might!
Hail! three times hail to our country and flag!

2. Foremost in battle for Freedom to stand,
We rush to arms when aroused by its call;
Still as of yore, when George Washington led,
Thunders our war cry: We conquer or fall!

CHORUS:
Hail! three times hail to our country and flag!
Thunders our war cry: We conquer or fall!
Hail! three times hail to our country and flag!

3. Faithful and honest to friend and to foe,
Willing to die in humanity's cause—
Thus we defy all tyrannical power,
While we contend for our Union and laws!
Hail! three times hail to our country and flag!

CHORUS:
Thus we defy all tyrannical power,
While we contend for our Union and laws!
Hail! three times hail to our country and flag!

4. Rise up, proud eagle, rise up to the clouds,
Spread thy broad wings o'er this fair western world!
Fling from thy beak our dear banner of old,
Show that it still is for freedom unfurled!
Hail! three times hail to our country and flag!

CHORUS:
Fling from thy beak our dear banner of old,
Show that it still is for freedom unfurled!
Hail! three times hail to our country and flag!

LITERARY NOTES.

—A good deal of confusion has arisen lately in the application of the appellatives, which are used to discriminate the book-wise. The following are a few of the more common terms: Bibliognoste, one knowing in title pages, and editions; the place where printed; the presses whence issued; and all the minutiae of a book. A Bibliographe is a describer of books. A Bibliomane is an indiscriminate accumulator. A Bibliophile is a lover of books, who reads what he buys. A Bibliotaphic buries his books, by keeping them under lock, or framing them in glass cases.

—A correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph, writing from Delhi, gives some interesting information about the Rajput State of Ulwar and the habits and surroundings of the Maharajah. Inside his gorgeous palace, in addition to solid silver dining tables are to be found a library, an arsenal, and a treasure house. The library is rich in Sanskrit and Persian MSS. It contains some marvellous illuminated scrolls, some ancient Kurans, and one special copy of the Gulistan for which it would be justifiable to break the tenth commandment. The book is valued by local bibliophiles at £200,000, but is beyond price for the purity of its script and the splendid color and delicacy of its pictures.

—Among the professional journals compiled in Paris in MS. is the "Bon Guide," the organ of beggars, containing information of great utility in their calling. For a subscription of eight sous a month they may consult it for a few minutes daily. It does not contain literature or politics, and all the articles are to the point. One may read: "To-morrow at noon, funeral of a rich man at the Madeleine;" "At 1, marriage of a clerk, no importance;" "Wanted, a blind man who plays the flute;" or "A cripple for a waiting-place."

—Within the twenty-five years past the number of newspapers published in this country has increased from 5,253 to 13,494, the number in existence at the present time, according to the edition of Rowell's Newspaper Directory. This makes a newspaper to every 3,716 inhabitants in the United States. Of the 2,400 newspapers started in 1885, 1,555 succumbed to circumstances over which they had no control. There is money enough sunk in this enterprise every year to make "countless thousands mourn."

—The contents of the state library at Monaco are being catalogued by a well-known French savant, who has discovered there a mass of correspondence of immense historical value. There are many documents of the greatest interest, as well as some 20,000 letters, including many written by successive kings of France, and by Richelieu, Mazarin, Catherine de Medici, Louvois, Colbert, and Montaigne.

—The total number of periodicals and newspapers published throughout the world is estimated at 37,274, with an aggregate circulation of 116,000,000,000. It is calculated that the daily papers of the United States issue 1,051,200,000 copies yearly, and the other periodicals bring the total up to 2,000,000,000 copies per annum.

—The descriptive catalogue of government publications on which Major Ben: Porley Poore has been long engaged is now finished. It gives the titles of 60,000 books or pamphlets published between the years 1776 and 1881, and will make a volume as large as the quarto edition of Webster's dictionary.

—Among the languages of civilized nations, English is the most widely spread. It is the mother tongue of about 120,000,000; German of between 50,000,000 and 60,000,000; French between 40,000,000 and 50,000,000; Spanish of 40,000,000; Italian of 28,000,000; and Russian of between 55,000,000 and 60,000,000.

—Ruskin uses confusing titles to some of his books. "Notes on the Construction of Sheepfolds," was largely ordered by the well-to-do farmers of England, who were not a little disgusted to find that it related to church matters.

—The founder and editor of one of the greatest London periodicals never wrote a line for his journal, and when he died, the review he built up by his individual ability did not make the slightest mention of the event.

—A work announced for publication in England will be welcomed here. It is an anthology of poems on children, from English and American writers of three centuries, and will have the title of "The Children of the Poets."

—The circulation of the Paris Petit Journal is now put at 800,000, less than half of which is in Paris. Figaro sells about 50,000, Temps 33,000, Debats 8,000 and Siecle 6,000. It has a press that prints 100,000 copies per hour.

—The free public library movement is making progress in India. The first institution of the kind established in the Punjab was opened at Lahore on New Year's Day.

—Exchanges report a newspaper in Michigan which is edited by a woman, and all the composers of which are women.

—The newspapers of the world have just been reckoned up at about 35,000, thus giving one to every 28,000 inhabitants.

—The Mother-in-law is the name of a paper started in Pueblo, Mexico.

—Ouida has written a new story of English society, entitled "A House Party."

State Items.

Forty young ladies and three youths were graduated as teachers at the commencement of the State Normal School at Trenton, last week.

A post office has been established in the upper end of Peapack, bearing the name of Gladstone. Elias Philower has been appointed postmaster.

B. Frank Abbet, brother of Gov. Abbet, has been appointed Superintendent of the Money Order Department of the Philadelphia post office. The salary is $2,000 a year. He has been holding a position at Washington.

The thirty-third annual Fair of the Monmouth County Agricultural Society will be held at Freehold on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, September 7th, 8th and 9th, with premiums of $8,000.

The Elizabeth Herald says: "If State committees insist on assessing gubernatorial candidates $15,000 or $20,000 for the privilege of running, we had better adopt the old Praetorian guard system and sell the gubernatorial purple from the auction block to the highest bidder for cash without further ado about it."

John B. Decker died on Thursday at the Clove, near Deckertown, aged eighty-two. He once bought a mare from a pedler, raised a colt which acquired the name of Decker's Worthless Mare, and finally sold it to his nephew, John H. Decker, of Newburgh, for $260. This colt became the famous trotter, Goldsmith Maid.

Two years ago Andrew Boyle, of Elizabeth, maliciously broke a large plate glass window in a saloon corner of First street and Elizabeth avenue, and was sent to State Prison for the act. He was discharged this week and returned to Elizabeth. Thursday he went into the same saloon and demanded a drink of the new proprietor, and after being refused went out on the sidewalk and threw an iron bar against the window, smashing it. He was promptly arrested and will very probably get another two years.

A locomotive on the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad attached to the Philadelphia express which leaves New York at 4.30 P. M., had a narrow escape on Monday afternoon from plunging into the open draw. The steam valve gauge burst at Bergen Point, rendering the engineer powerless, the throttle valve being wide open at the time. The train tore along at a frightful rate of speed and reached the draw just as it had closed after letting a vessel pass through. A second earlier and a terrible disaster would have occurred. The engine continued in its flight until half way between Elizabeth and the Port, when the steam became exhausted. The fires were drawn out and the disabled engine replaced by another.

Electric lights are talked of in Millville. A Philadelphia company wants to introduce them if the city council will make some inducements for them to try the venture.
